One Big Thing Done.
A New White Slavery.
Big Servant Problem.
The Marvelous French.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THE baseball championship is out of the way, Philadelphia and Connie Mack winning, with President Hoover looking on. Next come the great football games, with peace, Naval armament reduction and other minor affairs of life sandwiched in between the games.

A COMMITTEE of fourteen says night clubs are responsible for today's vice, or some of it. Old "white slave dealers" are antiquated. The night club owners engage young women through employment agencies, many of them deliberately and knowingly purveyors of vice.

YOUNG women think that they are engaged as dancing instructors. It is the old "white slave" business, on a somewhat different basis.

FRENCH women face a serious servant girl problem, but they will get little sympathy from American housewives. Women in France complain bitterly because they have to pay a really good cook $16 a month and board.

"EXTRAVAGANT AMERICANS" are blamed for the high wages and exaggerated demands of modern French servants. They even ask for hot running water in the kitchen and object to having only a candle for a bedroom light.

It is different in this country. The French are a marvelous people. No other can compare with them in thrift, determination and sleepless energy.

Just now France is a little bothered by Mussolini's rebuilding of the old Roman empire and its habit, which included the disagreeable custom of traveling north over the Alps.

The French government is spending $100,000,000, real dollars, not francs, increasing the strength of Alpine fortifications.

The French believe in peace like it, want it. They also believe in safety and being prepared.

FRANCE has accumulated one thousand millions of dollars in New York, a good American BILLION, equivalent to twenty-five billions of French francs, as much in real money as Bismarck took from France after the war of 1870. The explanation of such extraordinary resources is simple. FRENCHMEN WORK, AND SAVE.

AT home, France is cutting one billion francs from heavy taxes now laid on the French people, and the tax reduction favors large families first of all, with a big reduction in taxes on wages and salaries.

DR. FREDERICK TILNEY, professor of neurology at Columbia university, warns you that a headache is a serious thing. There are 16 different kinds of headaches, all requiring particular care and understanding. Headaches often come from anxiety and you should be cautious about taking medicine to kill a headache.

It may kill the headache, while the forces that cause the headache continue working to kill you.

DOCTORS from Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and Holland are touring the wine region of the Gironde in France, well supplied with samples of different wines. They will give learned reports on those wines and their effect upon the human system.

THE ancient Gauls thought they settled that question long ago. They came traveling toward the southwest until they reached the land where Burgundy and Bordeaux wines grow. There they stopped and settled down, saying "this is far enough. This is the place to live."

THEY are still living there. And although they have persistently refused to adopt ice water as a steady drink, they have produced some interesting men, from Charlemagne to Napoleon, from St. Louis to Clemenceau, from Moliere to Pasteur.

RAMSEY MACDONALD has gone, taking his fine young daughter with him. Today he is in Canada, greatest dominion of the Great British empire, of which he, a self-educated workman and an intelligent Socialist, is prime minister.

IT is no longer necessary to see a great man to know what he is. You read what he says, see his photographs, hear his voice on the radio, and you know him. The country knows, admires and likes Ramsay MacDonald.

EVERY intelligent man must praise the common sense and balance of the British empire, which goes its way evenly under the direction of a Tory, Liberal, or Socialist.

New Trials For Two Convicted Kidnappers

FATHER AND SON WIN IN STATE COURT

Pair Denies "Stealing" Four Year Old Orrville Boy.

CRIME UNSOLVED

Conviction Obtained On Circumstantial Evidence, Claim.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—(INS)—The Ohio supreme court today upheld the decision of the Wayne county appellate court which ordered a new trial for Elias and Arthur Arnold—63-year-old father and 17-year-old son—who were convicted of "child-stealing" in connection with the kidnapping of Melvin Horst, four-year-old Orrville boy.

Prisoners Are Returned. Both the father and son were convicted by circumstantial evidence in connection with the disappearance. The Horst boy is believed to have been abducted on December 27, last year. He has not been seen or heard from since and authorities believe that he is dead.

Elias was sentenced to serve 20 years in the Ohio state penitentiary and he was taken there. After serving a short time, however, the court of appeals granted him a new trial, and he was returned to the Wayne county jail at Wooster, where he arranged bond.

Arnold, the son, was also convicted on the "child-stealing" charges and he was sentenced to serve an indeterminate term in the Mansfield reformatory. He, too, served a part of the term before he was returned to the Wayne county jail, and he was arranged for him, however, and he has been in jail since his arrest, which followed close upon the disappearance of the Orrville boy.

Playmate Star Witness. Melvin Horst was last seen on the streets of Orrville near the Arnold home on the evening of December 27. It was charged at the trial that he was last seen with the Arnolds.

Members of the Kiwanis club will attend an intercity meeting tonight at 6:30 o'clock in the Lebanon Presbyterian church under the auspices of the club of that place. H. F. Laughlin will be the song leader. Delegations will also be present from other clubs in the county.

The local club will meet at noon tomorrow in the Travelers hotel when the advisability of making the recent Good-Will tour an annual event will be discussed. There will be no speaker.

LEGION SCOUTS GO TO LISBON

Members of the American Legion Boy Scout troop will meet in the Legion hall, 633 Dresden avenue, at 5:15 o'clock Friday evening to go to Lisbon where they will assist in traffic duty in connection with the dedication of the John Welsh post. Automobiles have been provided to transport the Scouts to Lisbon.

"Forest Love," Thrilling Story of The Romance of Modern Girl, By Hazel Livingston

CHAPTER I. The boy and the girl walked close together up the grassy path to the house. The little garden, weedy and overgrown in the daytime, was full of tropic beauty at night. A place of moonlight and shadow, of whispering leaves and dense, spicy smelling shrubs crowding the crooked, narrow path.

Not 70 feet from the street where his car was parked, to the house where behind deeply drawn shades, her family was "waiting up." Not 70 feet, and it had taken them half an hour to reach the "bird-path" half way up.

"Wonderful night," he mumbled, suddenly conscious that he ought to say something. "Wonderful night. Too nice to go in."

"Yes," she sighed, "but it's late. It must be awfully late."

FEDERATION WILL GREET MACDONALD

British Premier is Back On British Soil.

BUSY PROGRAM

To Confer With High Dominion Officials Tomorrow.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 16.—(INS)—Back on British soil after his historic visit to the United States on a mission of peace, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald faced a busy program here today.

This morning he was to address the American Federation of Labor convention and then attend a luncheon tendered him by a Canadian club. In the afternoon he will be honored with a degree of doctor of laws conferred by the University of Toronto. A public reception and a stag dinner at the government house were to follow before his departure tonight for Ottawa.

Upon his arrival at the Canadian capital tomorrow, Mr. MacDonald will confer with Mackenzie King, Canadian prime minister, and other dominion officials.

These conferences are expected to precede an important announcement from the prime minister concerning his conversations with President Hoover. The contents of the announcement have been closely guarded but it is believed it will touch further upon Anglo-American relations with special reference to freedom of the seas.

Isabel MacDonald is enjoying her visit to Canada as much as her stay in the United States.

HITS SMOKING BY FAIR SEX

Massachusetts Mayor Censors Films and Shows.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 16.—(INS)—Mayor Ralph A. Bauer, who made the girls and young women of Lynn roll up their stockings, today went on the war path against cigarette smoking by the fair sex.

Acting as city censor, the chief executive sent letters to all theater managers ordering them to cut from motion picture film scenes showing women smoking.

He also issued orders that all vaudeville acts in which women smoke shall hereafter be eliminated from the stage in Lynn.

Mayor Bauer said it was his "firm belief that smoking by girls was the first step in the downward path."

The mayor has had removed from billboards pictures showing girls smoking. Also he has removed from store windows any placard showing a girl puffing a cigarette.

TASTY DISHES PREPARED AT COOKS' SCHOOL

Increased Attendance At Review Lecture Course.

FOUR-DAY MEET

Another Session in Eagles' Hall on Thursday.

Increased attention marked the second session of the Review four-day cooking school in the Eagles' auditorium, Broadway, this afternoon. The lecture, which began at 2 o'clock, was preceded by an hour's program of orthophonic music.

Another menu of tasty dishes was demonstrated today by Mrs. Frances Northcross, of Chicago, home economist and cooking expert. Each of these dishes was prepared as the audience of women, who packed the hall, looked on.

Items included in today's menu were broiled steak, French fried potatoes, stuffed tomatoes with mushrooms, peanut butter biscuit, soufflé, frozen peach salad, meringues, iced, crullers, ice cream wafers, croquettes, fluffy icing, Lafayette gingerbread and good food. Each of the items demonstrated were among the recipes distributed among the visitors.

Lecturer Answers Questions. Considerable interest was shown by the women in the question box, which was conducted by Mrs. Northcross at the close of the demonstration. Mrs. Northcross has promised to answer all questions relating to cooking and household matters which may be asked during the course.

The keynote of the cooking school is accurately implied in its name, and cookery in all its ramifications is discussed in a manner calculated to give those present something tangible to take home in the way of ideas for simplifying this complicated and often monotonous function in housework. If the modern home is to keep abreast of progress in every other department of modern living, such as improved house construction, improved plumbing and better heating devices, then all the departments of better cookery and

M. E. PASTORS END TWO-DAY CONFERENCE

District Meeting Closes At First Church Here.

MANY VISITORS

Anniversary Banquet At Local Church Tomorrow.

Characterized as the best gathering of its kind in the memory of those attending it the Steubenville district conference of Methodist ministers and laymen concluded a two-day session, its one hundred and thirteenth, as a compelling part of the one hundred and second anniversary celebration of the First Methodist church at West Fifth and Jackson streets, in which it was held late yesterday afternoon. Immediately thereafter the visitors to the city left for their homes in various sections of Jefferson, Harrison, Carroll and Columbiana counties.

As a further contribution to the more than centenary program of the church members of its various missionary societies assembled with those of the same organizations of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church as their guests last evening. Mrs. Charles R. Boyce, of Chester, W. Va., presided and several in attendance made addresses.

Announcement was made during the day of the prayer and praise service which will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock which, it is planned, will be a largely attended gathering. It also will be a most pertinent part of the anniversary program.

Banquet Thursday Night. On Thursday evening the anniversary activities will take the form of a banquet at which there will be some 300 diners in the social rooms of the church for which already more than 250 reservations have been made. They will be addressed by James C. Mace, of Pittsburgh, executive secretary of the Central Y. M. C. A. of that city, who is well known by reason of his weekly resume of the International Sunday School lessons on the radio.

Resolutions read by the Rev. Mr. Meakin, of Columbiana, Ohio, expressed thanks to the members of the East Liverpool church, its pastor, Dr. W. O. Hawkins, and his assistant, the Rev. C. R. Loney for the use of the building as pastor and for his "welcome ministry of song" respectively. They also felicitated Dr. John Edwards, of New York City, and those assisting him for the progress noted in the uplifting work of the denomination's missionaries.

Confidence in his leadership and a pledge for closer co-operation in the full program of the conference were given to Dr. H. S. Powell, of Steubenville, who presided over its

STREET MARKING HERE FINISHED

Marking of streets in the residential section has been completed by the city with the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce.

More than a year ago, a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce launched a move for street marking at which time a survey was made to determine the number of signs required for this work.

More than 200 street signs were ordered by the city and East End sections at this time.

About 80 street signs were erected in the outlying section yesterday completing the street marking system.

200 Farmers Take Part In Man-Hunt

NEW WAY TO REDUCE FOUND

KENTON, O., Oct. 16.—(INS)—Found—a way to reduce! During the threshing season, W. H. Kinnear, owner of a farm near this city, missed two hogs 60 days ago. And today both had been found, though one is dead.

One was discovered in a stack of oats completely covered but was able to crawl out from its enforced home. During the intervening time the hog had lost 50 pounds, according to the owner of the animal.

The "porker" is expected to recover fully.

DEFENSE TO REST TODAY

Gastonia Strike Leaders to Know Fate Soon.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 16.—(INS)—The long trial of Fred E. Beal, generalissimo of the Gastonia strike, and six of his aides charged with the murder of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt will come nearer completion late today or tomorrow when the defense rests its case.

J. Frank Flowers, chief of the defense counsel, said this morning that the defense probably will conclude its testimony today or tomorrow, but declined to say whether the four remaining defendants, who have not gone to the stand, would be called on to testify.

It is no concealed fact that the state's injection of the issues of anarchy and atheism into the proceedings yesterday has resulted in a re-shaping of the defense case.

Edith Saunders Miller, wife of Clarence Miller, one of the defendants, admitted under the state's cross examination that she herself held no belief in a supreme being and that as a worker for the Young Pioneers of America, a communist organization, she taught Gastonia children "the Soviet form of government should be substituted for the present government of the United States."

Miller, also an organizer of the Young Pioneers, is the only defendant aligned with the Communist party. The defense has sworn but not called Sophie Melvin, also a Communist.

Crawford County Posses Scour Country For Assailant of Jacob Steiger at Nevada Home Yesterday.

BUCYRUS, O., Oct. 16.—(INS)—Armed with shotguns, pitchforks, and other implements, 200 farmers, supplemented by police squads, today started the greatest man-hunt in the history of Crawford county for the assailant of Jacob Steiger, 58, who was shot and probably fatally wounded at his farm home near Nevada late yesterday afternoon.

Steiger is in a local hospital with a bullet wound in his head and announcement of his death is expected momentarily.

According to the meager details of the shooting, which was believed to have been done by the man, or men, who robbed the Steiger home of $1,000 last month, Steiger surprised a man in the act of robbing his home yesterday.

The neighbors heard three gunshot reports and upon investigation found Steiger laying in a pool of his own blood in his barnyard.

Jacob was one of two bachelor brothers who resided on the farm near Nevada. John Steiger is the other. Upon the occasion of the robbery last month, large footprints, which were said by police to have been made by an unusual large man, were found. Identical footprints were found in the barnyard yesterday.

Jacob was not shot in the house, according to the police. It is believed he followed the man to the barnyard where the latter turned upon him and opened fire.

GOOD LUCK
PARLOR HEATER

Furnace Principle of Operation

The "Good Luck" Parlor Heater operates on the same principle as the basement furnace—only it is installed in the hall, living room or some other convenient room of your home.

It draws cool air from the various parts of the house, heats it and then circulates it throughout several rooms. Every room is heated to practically a uniform temperature, making it as comfortable in a far off corner as it is next to the heater. The whole house is made comfortable in cold weather when the "Good Luck" Parlor Heater is in operation—there are no more chilly rooms.

Inside Construction—All Cast Iron

The entire inside construction (or the furnace) of the "Good Luck" Parlor Heater is of cast iron. When different kinds of metal are used in the inner construction of heaters of this type, bulging and warping of the upper section takes place, due to unequal expansion and contraction, with the consequent leaking of smoke and ashes.

This undesirable feature is eliminated in the "Good Luck" Parlor Heater, because its inner construction is all cast iron.

Circulation—From All Four Sides

The "Good Luck" Parlor Heater furnishes heat by circulation. As the warm air rises in a room, the colder air is forced to the lower level. The colder air is drawn from the floor through the base of the heater, is thoroughly circulated through the heater and warmed, and is then discharged from the top of the heater. This method of circulation of the warmed air prevents cold floors and maintains a uniform temperature.

It is safe, because the ever constant flow of fresh air through the "Good Luck" Parlor Heater never allows the exterior to become overheated.

Slotted Fresh Air Type Fire Pot

The "Good Luck" Parlor Heater has a cast iron fire pot of the slotted type. These slots, which are the full depth of the fire pot, are vertical and offer absolutely no resistance to the natural flow of air, maintaining a high combustion to the full depth of the fuel, as well as the entire circumference of the fire pot.

This "Good Luck" slotted fire pot, with the air flues all around, introduces the air in such a way as to consume the gas and smoke, turning them into heat. This means a saving in fuel, because the cheapest grades of coal can be used with as good results as the best.

Prices Range From $65.00 Up.

AUTO OWNERS FACE TROUBLE

Sales Bills Must be Recorded to Get 1930 Licenses.

LISBON, O., Oct. 16.—Automobile owners who have traded cars during the last year and who have failed to have their bill of sale properly recorded and the license plates transferred accordingly, will be out of luck when the time comes to acquire 1930 license plates, according to information just received by County Auditor Elmer E. Walker from Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown. It has been estimated that over 200,000 car owners in Ohio have failed to have their license plates properly transferred from one car to another.

It has also been estimated that an additional revenue of $200,000 or more will be received by the state and other taxing districts, as a charge of $1 is provided by law for the transfer of a license. Through a system which Secretary of State Brown has put into force, it will be possible when an automobile owner applies for 1930 plates to tell whether the plates were legally used on a car other than the one they were issued for. A check-up in a number of counties to ascertain how many plates are being used illegally has already brought an additional return of over $80,000 to the state and various counties.

The estimate of the number of violators of the automobile license law provision was arrived at through comparing the number of transfers recorded with automobile sales reports.

SUES COMPANY FOR $4,459.05

Mrs. Francis Asks Settlement in Coal Deal.

LISBON, O., Oct. 16.—When the Kirk-Dunn Coal company of Salem operated a mine at West Point, the company had an agreement with J. L. Francis that a minimum of 60,000 tons of coal annually was to be produced, upon which a royalty of four cents per ton was to be paid.

Later the Seger Fuel company of Ligonier, Pa., acquired the property and also assumed contracts and agreements held by the Kirk-Dunn company.

It is now disclosed in a petition filed in common pleas court by Amelia L. Francis, administratrix of the estate of J. L. Francis, that the Seger Fuel company is indebted to the estate in the amount of $4,459.05. It is also related in the petition that the coal tonnage mined during the last few years is below the minimum specified in the agreement, in that 619 tons were mined during the fiscal year ending June 25, 1928, and 11,327 tons during the year ending June 25, 1929. The plaintiff also relates that some of the coal mined has been paid for at the rate of two cents per ton royalty.

The petition for the plaintiff has been filed by Brookes & Thompson of East Liverpool and Metzgar, McCarty & McCorkhill of Salem.

COX AWARDED WALL CONTRACT

LISBON, Oct. 16.—Frank L. Cox of Kensington has been awarded a contract by the county commissioners for the construction of a retaining wall on the Youngstown-Lisbon road near Unionville on his bid of $935.70.

Bids submitted by William McLane for $902.65 and John Euffill of Lisbon at $923.45 were irregular and could not be considered in the award. There was but $33.05 difference between the high and low bids submitted.

Cox has also been awarded the contract for the construction of a sewage disposal plant at the County Home on his bid of $2,448.25 and a retaining wall to be built at the same institution has been awarded H. C. Armstrong of Lisbon, on his bid of $1,553.85.

Divorce Decree Granted.

On the grounds of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty, a decree of divorce has been granted Rena M. Souders against her husband, Charles E. Souders. The case was heard by Judge W. E. Duncan, and Souders has been ordered to pay the plaintiff $2 weekly for the support of a youngest child, and the court then added further, "the other children being provided for at present by kindly neighbors."

DETOUR NEAR SUB-STATION IS REMOVED

New Section of Concrete Road Opened To Traffic.

PROGRESS SLOW

Finish Cold Patch Work in Madison Township.

LISBON, O., Oct. 16.—A section of new concrete between the Y. & O. sub-station and the Calcutta cut-off on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road is now open to traffic, it was announced today by County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. The detour used while this section was being poured has been eliminated.

Rather slow progress is being made pouring concrete on the California hollow section, due to the slow grading. It is held by Mr. Kirk, however, that the California hollow section will be poured and open to traffic before cold weather, and that slow grading has been the cause of the delay in completing the road.

Cold patch work has been finished on the brick section of the Lincoln highway in Madison township, and this road has been put in better shape than it has been all summer. The improvement was done under the supervision of W. C. Neff of Lisbon, state highway superintendent for Columbiana county.

It has been announced that the state highway department will do considerable work on the Cox highway next year, and it may follow that some parts of this highway will be rebuilt. Definite plans for the improvement of the Cox highway, however, have not been definitely determined at Columbus, it is said.

TRIO TO FACE GIRARD CHARGES

LISBON, Oct. 16.—Three men now in the county jail charged with issuing fraudulent checks at Salem and Leetonia will probably be turned over to Girard, O., police after Columbiana charges against them have been disposed of. John Densmore, Ray Petty and William Peterson, who are charged with taking blank checks from a Minerva garage office and then having them cashed are wanted at Girard for the same offense. Girard police have notified Prosecuting Attorney John E. Baucknecht that the three men are wanted at Girard after local courts have disposed of indictments.

Case Continued.

In the case of the Central Pochontas Coal Co., against A. W. Corns doing business as the Corns China Co., Wellsville, the court has granted leave to the Peoples National Bank and the Perpetual Savings & Loan Co., to file their answer by Nov. 11. Leins are to be marshaled in this suit.

TWO FINED ON RUM COUNTS

Judge Riddle Overrules Julian's Motion For New Trial.

LISBON, Oct. 16.—Probate Judge Lodge Riddle has overruled a motion for a new trial in the case of Louis Julian of Salem, charged with the illegal possession of liquor, and has fined the defendant $300 and costs. Julian was caught in the dragnet set by state prohibition inspectors when they visited Salem two weeks ago. The defendant has arranged to pay his fine and costs.

In the same court, Mrs. Charles Prezzia also of Salem, who was charged with a sale of intoxicating liquor, has entered a plea of guilty, and has been fined $100 and costs, which is to be discounted.

During the remainder of the current week, and continuing next week, a score or more of liquor trials are to be held in probate court. All are cases arising out of recent raids at Salem.

Salem Lodge Sued.
LISBON, Oct. 16.—The Hold Construction Co., of Cleveland, has filed suit in common pleas court to recover $1,550.40 and interest from Sept. 23 last claimed owing by Salem lodge B. P. O. E. as a balance due on a contract.

Two fine cakes and a new cake-making secret

If you have been in the habit of using only butter in your cakes, it may, at first, be a little hard to understand how Crisco can make cakes that you simply can't tell from butter cakes. But it's true!

One taste of Crisco just as it comes from the can will tell you why. Did you ever imagine a shortening could be so sweet and fresh?

Now, don't you understand why more and more fine cooks are using Crisco alone in all their cakes? Especially so when you discover how quickly and thoroughly Crisco blends with the other ingredients, giving you lighter, more tender cakes with a nice, even texture.

Date Cake

¾ cup Crisco 1 teaspoon cinnamon
1½ cups brown sugar ½ teaspoon nutmeg
4 eggs 1 teaspoon salt
¾ cups flour 1½ cups dates, stoned and cut in small pieces
4 teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup milk
Cream Crisco and sugar together. Add

Featherweight White Cake

¾ cup Crisco ½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar 2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup milk 3 egg whites
2 cups flour 1 teaspoon vanilla
Cream Crisco. Add sugar gradually. Stir in alternately milk and sifted dry ingredients. Fold in thoroughly stiffly beaten egg whites. Add vanilla. Turn batter into 2 greased layer cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.). Ice with any desired icing.
(To make it into a Lady Baltimore Cake, use a filling of dates, figs and nuts moistened with lemon juice, and ice with boiled icing.)

These recipes have been tested and approved by cooking authorities. You will get best results by using level measurements and the ingredients specified.

CRISCO is used in the Cooking School now being conducted by this paper

Mrs. Frances Northcross, in the Review Cooking School, makes a point of modern methods in cooking. Naturally, then, she uses Crisco, the modern shortening. Not only is Crisco easy to use; in addition, it helps you secure better, surer results.

CRISCO is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co.

Just Naturally Good

Good tobaccos . . . made good by Nature, not by "artificial treatment." That's the secret of OLD GOLD'S goodness

A chef may be able to make a doubtful steak taste good by artificial flavoring and sauces . . . But it's still dangerous to your stomach.

So it is with cigarette tobaccos. "Heat-treating" is useful to "set" and "sterilize" the tobaccos . . . and all cigarette makers have used it for years. But "heat-treating" cannot take the place of good tobacco in making a honey-smooth cigarette.

OLD GOLD tobaccos are naturally good. Carefully selected from Nature's best for smoothness, flavor and freedom from throat-scratch.

You have only to try a package to get the thrill of this smoother and better cigarette. That will tell you why OLD GOLD'S sales are ALREADY THREE TIMES GREATER than the combined sales of three leading brands during a like period of their existence.

Better Tobaccos make them smoother and better . . . with "not a cough in a carload"

HASKIN LETTER DAILY

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16.—Various systems for the carrying on of convict labor are in use in the several state penal institutions, a new survey recently made by the department of commerce reveals. The subject is attracting considerable attention at this time because of the discontent of prisoners as manifested in recent penitentiary riots.

The survey was made with the cooperation of a committee representing dealers in prison-made goods, prison labor contractors, organized labor, the chamber of commerce of the United States, women's organizations, and officials of corrective institutions. Penologists are generally agreed that modern corrective measures for criminals make some occupation for convicts imperative but there is disagreement as to the importance of teaching trades and disagreement as to the best system. "Different remedies are offered," says the department in commenting on the survey. "The only point on which all seem to be agreed is that there is still room for great improvement."

The system which has probably been most severely criticized is the contract labor system. Under it the state feeds, clothes, houses and guards the convict, maintaining a properly equipped institution and an adequate force to guard the prisoners wherever they may be employed. Then a contract is entered into with an individual or company. The contractor furnishes his own raw material if manufacturing is involved, superintends the work, and pays to the state a stipulated sum per day or per week per man. Many abuses which have darkened American prison annals have arisen from this contract labor system. Stories of the treatment of convicts in prison camps engaged in lumbering, mining, quarrying and such work have come to light from time to time. How men have been half-starved, under-clothed and driven like galley slaves has been told.

Another system is the piece-price system. In major respects it is the same; a contract being entered into between the state and a contractor. Instead of a wage paid per man, however, the payment is in the form of an agreed amount per unit of work. Character of work under contract often determines the system. The piece-price system would not work feasibly in a lumber camp but would be preferable in a shoe or shirt factory. Under the piece-price system, supervision usually devolves upon prison officials.

Another form of the system does not alter the situation of the convict but does that of the state. Under it there is no outside contractor involved; the state directly enters the manufacturing business, buying raw materials, supervising production and marketing the output.

Probably the system least used is the leasing system. Only smaller institutions employ it as a rule. It provides for the leasing of a convict to a person or company agreeing to feed, clothe, house, and guard him and pay the state a fixed sum for his services. This system leaves room for abuses and is unpopular. It is closely akin to the system of indenturing servants for a term of years which was in vogue during colonial days in America.

Practices vary as to the wage proceeds of prison labor. Many institutions allow prisoners no wages whatever. Others require a certain amount of free work after which a very small wage is paid, often being for a month's work about what the man would earn in a day or two if free. In some cases the money is held in trust until the man's term is ended. He then is given his accumulated earnings, starting him anew in the world with a nest egg. Still another practice has been the payment of an inmate's earnings to dependents.

Some illuminating comparisons may be quoted. One prison sells overalls at $9 a dozen whereas it costs an outside manufacturer $12.50 a dozen merely to produce them, figuring no overhead or profit. A prison-made grain binder sold for $125 while the lowest wholesale price an outside maker could quote was $177 for the same article.

The reason that the prices are as close together as those quoted is that free labor is obviously more efficient. Primarily, no prisoner can work as efficiently under duress as a free man. The convict knows he has to work; the free man knows he must work well enough to hold his job.

Although millions of dollars worth of goods are produced each year, the general view of penologists is that prisoners must be kept at work to increase their contentment and their usefulness, because the relatively small portion of the national production which comes from prisons does not do industry and trade sufficient harm through low-cost competition to offset the advantage to society of sending back healthier and better equipped men to the responsibilities of freedom at the end of their terms.

Q. Why was the Chicago baseball team called the Cubs? A. D. D.

A. It acquired this title in 1890, when nearly all of Anson's old players deserted him and went over to The Players League. Anson then surrounded himself with youngsters who were styled The Cubs.

Q. How fast must an airplane be traveling before it will leave the ground? M. D.

A. The speed at which an airplane must travel before leaving the ground depends on the plane. Some leave the ground when traveling at as low a speed as 35 miles an hour, while racing planes must be going at a rate of 100 miles an hour before they can take off.

Q. What is the Michelin scheme? B. C.

A. The French firm of Michelin began some years ago to make family allowances among its employees based on the size of the family. The birth of a child is a positive economic advantage. As a result it is reported that the birthrate in the Michelin community is twice that of France as a whole. Living conditions are good, therefore the rate of infant mortality is low.

Other Editors Say

The Root of an Evil.

Swinging a well sharpened axe with force and conviction, President L. A. Miller of the Willys-Overland company strikes at the root of the evil of overproduction of automobiles.

Production and sales record are good talking points in automobile marketing, but they seem to have been overestimated when considerations of price, power, dependability and comfort would be more convincing from the purchaser's viewpoint.

In consequence of competitive striving and straining for production records, there has been overproduction. The number of new cars forced upon the market somewhat exceeds the purchasing power of the people, but the new automobile model of this year cannot usually be carried over until next year except at a sacrifice by the dealer. He must move his stock, if not by actual price cutting, then by too liberal allowance for a trade-in used car.

That is a remedy for the situation. It is an expedient of doubtful wisdom which, in turn, creates another problem—that of disposing of the used car at a price which the dealer must obtain in order to "break even."

As Mr. Miller so well says, the flood of new cars from the factories and the piling up of used car inventories is an unbearable burden upon the automobile business.

And Mr. Miller might have added with equal truth that, while a few individual car buyers benefit by the dealers' loss, the burden of continuing loss and waste ultimately must be passed along to the public.

By discarding the too-ambitious fixed-in-advance production program and turning out cars in just sufficient quantity to meet legitimate demand, the automobile industries will be placed upon a better business basis. Their dealers will benefit also and the savings may be reflected eventually in better cars without corresponding increase in price.—Toledo Blade.

Genius, Society's Stewardship.

Genius, which on occasion makes an appearance in unexpected places and under most adverse circumstances, should be considered, we believe, as a sacred stewardship of society, since society in general benefits greatly from it and derives, frequently, untold blessings. When the social and economic order is such as to stifle genius and starve it, the world is most definitely the loser.

An experiment in this principle has been undertaken by a group of farsighted Chicago men who have "incorporated" Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally famous architect, whose mismanagement of his own affairs, business and personal has threatened to deprive the world of a valuable mind and talent. By underwriting him financially and taking from his shoulders the burden of handling prospective problems, this group gives promise of being indirectly responsible for giving the world a new type of building construction that will revolutionize architecture.

It is a well recognized fact that most geniuses, be they artists or inventors, are possessed of such temperament as to make them almost entirely irresponsible from a business standpoint. Of course, there are two serious pitfalls to any plan for underwriting genius. First, there is the difficulty in picking the genuine article and, second, the possibility of unjust exploitation by unscrupulous persons. But these dangers exist in almost every line of human endeavor. Given a man with unusual and practicable ideas, with evidence of superior mentality along with certain useful lines, and we have, in our opinion, a subject worth serious attention by a select portion of society that is in a position to furnish the means of developing him.—Columbus Dispatch.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Not long ago I came within an inch or so of being in the midst of a full blown theater panic. It was at an auspicious first night. Along about the middle of the first act there was a sizzling, and crackling and a pungent puff of smoke floated lazily over the audience.

It needed only the spark of hysteria to produce pandemonium. The first expression was of restlessness with everyone to hold themselves in grip. White faced men in a sort of halfhearted calm whispered to their ladies and here and there was a nervous laugh that might break out in a horrible scream. The players struggled tensely.

Suddenly in the front row a man darted up the aisle. The world seemed to pause and stand still. Then the house started to rise in a panic, a roar—Robert Warshawsky, incidentally—proved a courageous trouper in a deadly emergency.

He stepped out of his part, up to the footlights and with engaging calmness pleaded: "Please, ladies and gentlemen, there is nothing whatever wrong in this theater."

Several quickly sat down and the rest, like sheep, followed and the catastrophe was averted.

It was discovered later that two women had swooned. In certain parts of the Alps, they say, snow mountains become so delicately balanced that a sudden yell will send them on a devastating avalanche of destruction. So is a theater panic precipitated. New York theaters are especially safe in a panic, a holocaust is said to be impossible. All theaters may be emptied in three minutes with the audience moving at a natural pace. It is the quick rushes that clog the aisle or entrances and bring disaster. All house employees are trained to avoid this danger.

Every theater has its exits in bright red letters and at the mouth of every program is that bit of one-legged poetry: "Look around now and choose the nearest exit to your seat. In case of fire, walk (not run) to that exit. Do not try to beat your neighbor to the street." To obey that, means perfect safety.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

It should not be left to the insurance companies to warn against taking cold and what to do if you get one. It should be well understood by everybody that colds are dangerous, they are unnecessary, and should not be neglected.

When cold weather comes on and the condition of school, theater and business, make it impossible to escape close contact, colds are sure to thrive. The matter of prevention is more difficult.

Have you ever thought about the evils of the family stove? When cold weather arrives, father, mother, all the children and perhaps a grandparent or two will crowd about the stove. The hired man, a maid servant and perhaps a couple of visitors complete the group.

The windows are nailed fast and rags are tacked about them to keep out the air. The atmosphere of the room is breathed over and over, and even the moist secretions of the others may be inspired.

This is the way tuberculosis is passed on from one person to another in the family group. Indeed, conditions such as I have described are almost certain to transmit this dread disease.

Of course if the family circle is absolutely free from this infectious disease, we need not worry about that ailment. But it is rare indeed for a given individual, to say nothing about a large group of persons, to escape some infection, more or less serious, with the germs of tuberculosis. A great Italian scientist found evidence of it in 597 out of 600 bodies examined in autopsies.

But even though the family, gathered in cozy comfort about the stove or cheerful fireplace, may be in no danger from tuberculosis, they are unlikely to escape contamination from the common cold. During the cold season one of another of the household will take cold. Unless great care is exercised, it is only a question of time when all will have it.

Cleanliness of the face and hands, avoidance of direct contact with a person known to have a cold, lots of sunlight and exercise out-of-doors these are important. Fresh air is as essential, a day and night essential.

Some other day I will speak again about the common cold and its control.

THEN the loss was distributed AFTER the fire

Now it is distributed BEFORE

The ancient Assyrians recognized the necessity for insurance twenty-five hundred years ago, and they lived under an agreement that the sufferer from fire would be indemnified by a fund to which every one in the community would subscribe AFTER a fire occurred.

Today this method of "chipping in" has been placed on a much more business-like basis, and stock fire insurance companies assume your risk at a small annual cost to you. This agency carries the service of these great insuring organizations right to the door of your home or office. It is the connecting link between you and sound indemnity.

COLMAN COMES INTO HIS OWN

Ronald Colman comes into his own as the hero of a dashing comedy melodrama at the State theater in a creepy, spine-curdling, picture of the famous "Bulldog Drummond." The Samuel Goldwyn star whose serious love-making has made him a national figure has lost none of his sense of romantic appeal; but to it he has added a genuine feeling for comedy which results in there being just the right mixture of thrills and laughter in the picture.

From its great success, both in book form and on the stage, many people may already know the story of the demobilized officer who gets so bored with "after the war quiet" that he writes a letter to the London Times offering his services in any kind of hair-raising adventure, so long as it is dangerous. This business-like procedure immediately involves him in the troubles of a beautiful girl whose uncle is being tortured by a gang of criminals headed by two men and a woman. There is plenty of hand-to-hand fighting and gun-play, but it is by outguessing his antagonists that Drummond finally breaks up the criminals' nest in the fake sanitarium and wins the girl.

Joan Bonnet, appearing for the first time on the screen, is shortly going to be a prime candidate for the title of the loveliest blonde in pictures, from the evidence of her work as Phyllis, Bulldog Drummond's lady love. The horrifying effects of such faces as Montague Love's and Lawrence Grant's under the superb lighting of the picture, coupled with excellent performances by both men, make the criminal gang something to have nightmares about. Lilyan Tashman, as the slinky adventuress, gives one of her superbly fine pieces of work, and Claude Allister and Wilson Benze ably support Colman in the comedy relief.

AUDITORIUM NEED CITED

J. G. Pittenger Urges Newell Sports Center.

NEWELL, W. Va., Oct. 16.—J. G. Pittenger, member of the Newell Community association, today stressed the need of a high school auditorium.

Pittenger pointed out the advantage of having such a building where basketball and other events could be staged. He said an auditorium that would meet requirements could be erected between the two wings in the rear of the Wells building.

The question, officials of the community organization said, will be considered after the new sidewalk from the school to Sixth street is completed and the volunteer fire department is rehabilitated.

STARS PARADE IN BIG REVUE

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, from first to last, has done a wonderful job with its great musical extravaganza, "The Hollywood Revue," now at the Ceramic theater.

Not one star, but dozens—names to conjure with in the motion picture world, pass in review before your eyes, each with song, dance or skit, each with his or her proper balance; each, often with a background of gorgeous girls in gorgeous settings, brilliantly illuminated with color and sound.

Twenty songs! As many dances. Tremendous ensembles mark this super-musical production as the great parade of stars goes by with Marion Davies in male impersonation in a ballet number, "Tommy Atkins on Parade," in which she both sings and dances; Norma Shearer and John Gilbert in a modern "Romeo and Juliet" number; Bessie Love in song and dance; Conrad Nagel with song and sparkling dialog; Anita Page as beautiful as ever; Joan Crawford in a hitting song and dance act; Buster Keaton in one of his best screen laughs; Karl Dane and George K. Arthur; William Haines in one of his famous comedy skits, and also Stan Laurel and Olive Hardy; "Ukulele Ike," the maestro of the instrument which gave him his name; Gus Edwards—Marie Dressler, famous comedienne with Polly Moran in another; The Alpertina Rasch ballet, the Prox Sisters, Jack Benny, the vaudeville humorist Nathan Natvova—all these and many others, blended into one great revue.

RIOT OF FUN AT AMERICAN

Elmer ("Harry") Kane lives on the screen at the American theater.

The famous character of the "You Know Me Al" series created by Ring Lardner, is interpreted for the first time, in "Fast Company," by Jack Oakie, popular young comedian of the smart-cracking type who was seen in "Close Harmony," "The Dummy," "The Wild Party" and other recent successful pictures.

Ring Lardner and George M. Cohan wrote the play from which "Fast Company" was adapted and the dialog sparkles with Lardner's ready, slangy wit. Evelyn

Brent, spit-fire of many a crook melodrama, is seen here as the hard-boiled actress who succumbs to the wise-cracking, small-town hero, after a series of mix-ups which provides a riot of fun. Richard "Skeets" Gallagher, who play ed with Oakie in "Close Harmony" provides a bit of fun in "Fast Company." "Fast Company" is a new kind of boy and girl romance. It is fast-moving and unsentimental and decidedly amusing.

More and More Colds Treated Externally

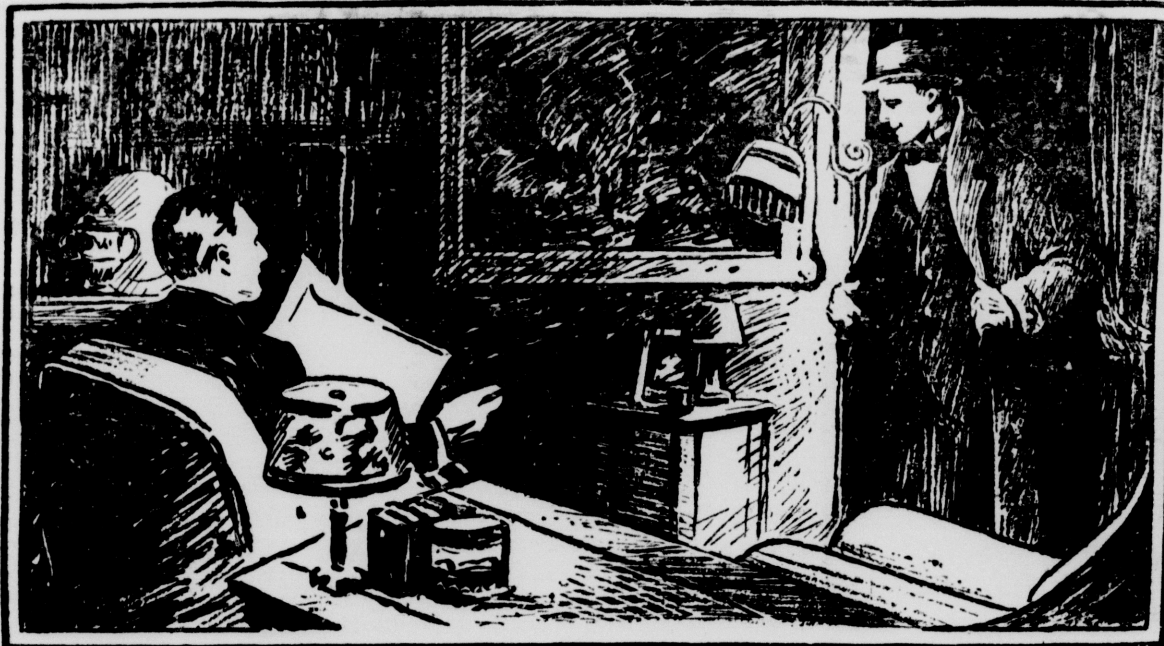

Growing Demand for Vicks Vapo-Rub Compels Another Increase in Famous Slogan.

A generation ago, when Vicks Vapo-Rub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

As a result, the demand for Vicks has increased so rapidly that it is again necessary to change its familiar slogan. First announced when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," this famous slogan was raised to "21 Million" a short time ago. Once more the figure has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" in the United States alone.

Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Just rubbed on, this modern vaporizing ointment acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, and at the same time it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages.

Year after year the popularity of Vicks has spread all over the world until it is now the family standby for all colds—adults as well as children's—in more than 60 countries.—Adv.

"Make yourself comfortable!"

SUCH an invitation is sometimes expressed with considerable embarrassment, especially when your furnace has gone on a "strike" and throws your home into a "chill" just a few moments before the guest arrives.

Protection this winter against the inconvenience and troubles of old fashioned heating equipment may be secured immediately by installation of a modern gas-fired heating plant in the basement of your home.

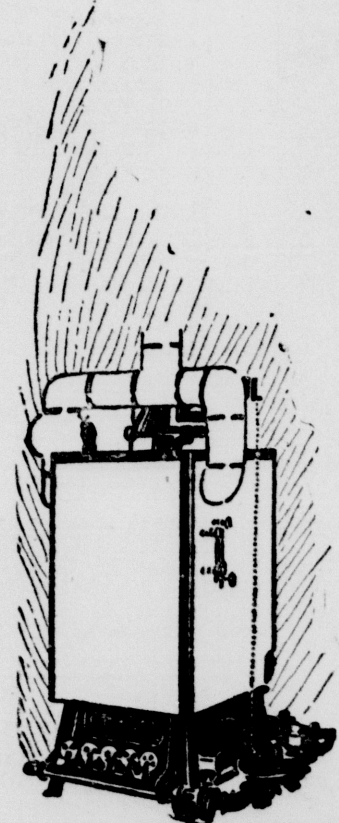

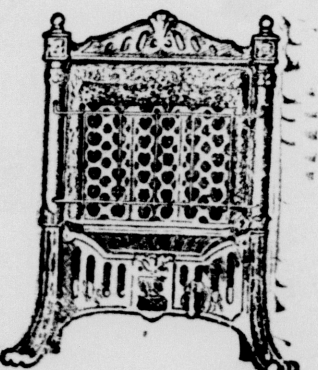

Gas heat eliminates ashes, dust, grime and many other exasperating inconveniences of other fuels. It is controlled by an upstairs thermostat and the only attention a gas furnace requires is in fall, when you light the pilot and in spring, when you turn it off. Simple regulation of the indicator gives you an even, comfortable heat at any temperature desired for any length of time.

Let us survey and estimate your heating needs.

SCORE ENTER BEAUTY REVUE AT AMERICAN

Many Business Firms To Be Represented In Pageant.

OPENS FRIDAY

"Miss East Liverpool" To Take Part in State Contest.

More than a score of beautiful girls will be seen on the stage at the American theater Friday night who play the principal parts in East Liverpool's greatest style promenade and beauty pageant.

Several local business firms will be represented at the show. Each firm participating will have its representative in the revue, and she will wear a ribbon emblemized with the name of the respective firm that she represents.

The presentation will embody all features of the most glittering New York fashion show and at the same time will be interspersed with song, musical and dance specialties with perfect continuity and there will not be a dull moment through.

"Miss America," first alternate of 1929 will be an added attraction. She is said to be the most beautiful girl to enter today and will entertain with song and dance specialties. This young lady is a professional performer and has been offered several contracts by major theatrical producers to appear in New York productions, the last being proffered by Earl Carroll after winning her last title at Baltimore. All offers were rejected as she prefers making personal appearances the same as she will do at the American, Friday.

The entertainment at the American will be closely watched by five highly qualified and unbiased judges at each performance, and some one of the young ladies will be given the title of "Miss East Liverpool," who will go, with all expenses paid, to the Ohio State Beauty Pageant at Cleveland to vie for the honors of "Miss Ohio of 1930." The winner will in turn go to Galveston, Texas, together with her mother or suitable chaperone, with all expenses paid for a fifteen day trip. At Galveston, "Miss Ohio" will enter the International Pageant of Puget Sound for the selection of "Miss United States" and "Miss Universe of 1930."

The staging of the revue here will be in the capable hands of T. Dwight Pepple, master producer who is staging a similar event at the Capitol theatre, Steubenville.

Several special new features will be incorporated in the presentation here that have not been employed before including a high circular runway. A special scenic creation will be employed especially for this occasion. The stage will be set with beautiful furniture made to stand out by the use of pretty floral designs.

All East Liverpool girls will appear in street and evening attire and not in bathing suits. The entire affair is being carried out in a dignified manner and promises to be an artistic success the same as it has been in Wheeling, Steubenville and other cities where the same people handled the pageants.

ness at the trial. It was his testimony that clinched the case against the Arnolds.

In their appeal for the new trial, the Arnolds attacked the testimony of the child witness, and after a lengthy hearing, the new trial was ordered by the Wayne county court of appeals.

The county prosecutor, however, carried the decision to the Ohio supreme court and he met defeat today when the high court rejected his appeal.

Arnold, a 63-year-old man and former alleged bootlegger, has maintained his innocence. Even when he was incarcerated in the Ohio state penitentiary with a 20-year prison sentence staring him in the face, he said, "God knows I didn't kidnap that boy."

Two Months Search.

The search for the body of Melvin lasted for more than two months. Detective Ora Slater, Cincinnati, who is regarded as one of Ohio's greatest sleuths, was called into the case, but his investigations, too, led up against a blank wall.

Wayne county police have not yet given up the hope of finding the child's body. It has been nearly 10 months since the boy disappeared and during that time, authorities have failed to reach a solution of the crime.

Authorities weaved a chain of circumstantial evidence against the two Arnolds and obtained their conviction, however.

Public opinion was against the Arnolds at the time, they charged in their appeal for a new trial. That same public opinion has died down in Wooster, according to telegraphic reports here, and the Arnolds, when they face their new trial, are believed to have a better chance for acquittal than they had at their first hearing.

Trial Date Fixed.

WOOSTER, O., Oct. 16.—(INS)—Elias and Arthur Arnold, who were convicted of the kidnapping of Melvin Horst, 4, Orrville lad, will be retried in common pleas court here during December or January.

Prosecutor Marion Graven said today after receiving notice of the Ohio supreme court's decision which assured a second trial for the alleged "child-stealers."

THAW FACES CHARGES OF GIRL DANCER

New York Girl Sues Millionaire for $100,000 Damages.

SECOND TRIAL

Plaintiff Claims She Was Beaten During Party.

BY DAVID P. SENTNER

1. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Many years ago Harry K. Thaw, heir to millions, entered a courtroom and his name rang around the world as the slayer of Stanford White.

Today, the Pittsburgh millionaire to whom a generous portion of the fortune of his late mother has passed, was expected once again to take the witness stand this time to deny charges of Marcia Estardus, Broadway entertainer.

Mrs. Estardus, whose real name is May O'Neill, is suing for $100,000, alleging that she was beaten and bitten by him in his apartment on New Year's day, 1927. The first trial of the action resulted in a jury verdict.

Thaw, whose hair is now as white as the snows of winter, sat in a nearby office and listened to telephone reports from counsel while his accuser told her story from the witness chair in supreme court.

deliberations as district superintendent. The latter announced those who will comprise a committee of trustees on the residence of the superintendent in Steubenville. Of the nine named in various sections of the district those from this locality include Frank Crook, of East Liverpool, and Frank Wells, of Wellsville.

John Floyd, of Steubenville, treasurer of the conference, disclosed in a report that he made that the salary and expenses incident to the activities of the district superintendent had been prorated at a basis of 5 per cent of the individual pastor's salary plus rental on his parsonage and a sum that equaled 12 cents per member.

Report Kernahan Campaign.

Merits of the Kernahan visitation campaign plan were outlined in a favorable manner by W. O. Hawkins, of East Liverpool, in view of the fact that a similar departure has been arranged in Steubenville to be consummated before Christmas and the additional fact that Dr. Charles Goddell, of New York City, secretary of the Federation of Churches, is to be the pre-Easter speaker in the down-river city next year.

Decision to request a change in the prevailing method of permitting local chapters of the Epworth league in selecting their own weekly subjects for discussion was reached following a resolution presented by Dr. C. N. Church, of Lisbon.

In this connection the Rev. J. F. Ellis, of Seio, Ohio, speaking to the theme, "The Kind of a Pastor Young People Like," told of his intention of arranging a society for those not touched by the Juniors and Seniors of the organization. He stressed the importance of pastors attending league meetings and holding the interest and confidence of the younger members of their congregation in the complex needs of modern life.

Wellsville Pastor Speaks.

"Pentecostal Power Today," was illuminatingly discussed by the Rev. J. H. Butler, of the First Methodist church of Wellsville.

He stressed the need of officials of the church being animated by the Holy Spirit. "If the members of the official board do not believe in pentecostal power it is of little use to attempt to have some Tom, Dick or Harry on the river front have it," he said.

An unique, and perhaps unprecedented contribution to the conference was a most practical demonstration by the Rev. C. A. Miller, former assistant of the First Methodist church of Canton and now the pastor of the congregation at Richmond, O. He is a graduate of Allegheny college and of the Wesleyan theological school, of Boston, Mass. He prepared an order of Sunday morning worship which he exemplified by having the entire assemblage march into the church's auditorium from the Sunday school room in which the session of the conference was being held and himself acting as the minister in the pulpit with the Rev. Mr. Loney as chorister and Mrs. T. C. Plick as the organist and those assembled went through his arranged form which he had distributed to all in copied sheets.

Laymen on Program.

"The Kind of a Sermon I Like" was strikingly discussed by E. E. Davidson, a layman of East Springfield, O.

"There should be no uncertain note in a minister's sermon," he unhesitatingly averred. "No salesman can sell that in which he does not believe. A minister with a $5,000 salary in describing what occurred when John baptized Jesus averred that 'of course the heavens were not opened, no dove descended and all of this was but a mental picture.'"

"The Kind of a Layman I Like," was alluringly described by Dr. H. E. Bright, pastor of the First Methodist church of Steubenville, Ohio.

"The Kind of a Preacher I Like," was presented by W. T. McNutt, chairman of the official board of the First Methodist Episcopal church. His estimate gave a hum-erous slant to the conference which was keenly appreciated by the ministers constituting it. On this theme also T. T. Jones, of East Liverpool, also spoke.

Pension Plan Discussed.

"The Value of Pastoral Visitation" was responded to by the Rev. W. C. Patterson, of Cadiz, Ohio. He lifted to a high plane a custom which he declared should obtain when persons were not necessarily ill or in trouble but likewise when they enjoyed a parity of existence.

The conference throughout its deliberations enjoyed at intervals the sharp, incisively humorous comments of the Rev. Mr. Shaddock, pastor of the Rogers, Ohio, congregation. The viewpoints of the Rev. Dr. C. N. Church, pastor of the Lisbon congregation, were listened to with constant interest and respect.

Matters pertaining to insurance of ministers as well as those dealing with the so-called pension plan that is being worked out were subjects that engrossed much of the interim devoted to business.

housekeeping must free themselves of obsolete methods.

Mrs. Northcross' demonstrations are planned to cover such far reaching subjects as scientific food buying, variety in menus, balanced meals, diets and child feeding. For instance, cheaper cuts of meats have great possibilities for preserving their nourishing values and in appetizing preparation. Again, there are only a few dozen different vegetables for use in menu planning, but many women thoughtlessly get into a rut with only a half dozen of them, and urgently need, for their own sake, if for no other reason, a reminder of other dishes to relieve the monotony of luncheon and dinner every day throughout the year.

Mrs. Northcross constantly emphasizes the necessity of variety not only in selection, but in preparation, and the enthusiasm of her audience has been proof that her ideas are absorbingly interesting and useful.

Enlightened Cookery Rules.

Just as important as selection and preparation in making cookery more interesting and less tedious are the improved conveniences of kitchen appointments. Tools make for nimble fingers, better utensils save time and give better results, a place for everything and everything in its place saves steps, and proper control of cooking heat together with uniform cold in preserving foods, all make for easier finances and shorter hours in housekeeping. Mrs. Northcross unhesitatingly stands for modern methods and improved devices.

The kitchen is the center of the household, and up-to-date utensils and enlightened cookery must prevail if standards are to be raised and tiresome hours relieved for the broadening interests of social and cultural life for the self-sacrificing wife and mother. The contentment and happiness of the whole family are increased just insofar as the

Forest Love

Thrilling story of romance and a modern girl's ambition.

By Hazel Livingston

... this was different... She wanted to keep Mat Tully all to herself... to keep him away from the family, from papa's too cordial tra cream for the chocolate, and laid the pound cake in the beautiful, overlapping slices on the best Milton plate.

"I—I think I'll go right to bed—I'm awfully tired," she decided hastily, seeing that the family was in a mood for talk.

"Yes, get your beauty sleep," Louise advised acidly, resuming her sewing. "I'll get this finished somehow. You'll want it to impress the Tully person tomorrow night." She lifted the long, billowing skirt of the pale organdie she was working on, trying to catch her sister's averted gaze. Men always loved like blue. He'll go down like a ton of bricks... and after all, he's worth struggling for—if he has any money!

"LOUISE!" Mrs. Hollenbeck gasped. "Mama won't have you talking like that!"

"Well, it's the truth. Nancy might do a whole lot worse!"

"LOUISE!" Little Mr. Hollenbeck, slow to interfere in the arguments of his women folk, looked up over his spectacles, and returned to the sport page.

Louise was the older Hollenbeck girl, a little sharp of tongue, a little wistful already at 24. She looked very tired and plain tonight, with her straight, dark hair clinging damply to her forehead and her eyes heavy with fatigue. "The way I'll look in five years, if I stick around home like she has!" Nancy thought, seeing for the first time the faint lines under Louise's eyes, the bitter droop of her mouth. Something like panic seized her. Suppose Mat didn't really love her! Suppose nobody ever really proposed to her, and she had to wait around year after year, like Lou—like the old Arnold girls, still wallflowers at college dances, still coming to Girls' Friendly meetings, feverishly pretending they were young, and everybody remembering they had their coming out party in 1913.

"But I won't be like that," she promised herself quickly. "I'm different!"

She had only to lift her eyes to the mirror over the mantel. Different! Of course she was different! Nineteen, and as fresh as a flower. Young, and truly lovely—the prettiest prettiest girl in their set.

"You don't have to worry about me!" she burst out suddenly. "I won't die an old maid. And besides—Mat Tully isn't such a prize!"

That last was mere school girl bravado, but Louise, stitching wearily on the frock that was to be his downfall, didn't take it as such. "Neither are you," she returned tartly, keeping her eyes on the sewing, ignoring the almost breath-taking loveliness reflected in the old mirror across the room. She didn't have to look. Ever since she was a pale, gangly, legged girl of five and baby Nancy lay dimpling and cooing in her basket she had been hearing about her sister's beauty. And now, at 19, it had come to its height. Every thing about Nancy, from her warm, flawless skin, to the delicate turn of her wrist and ankle, was perfect. The clear, aristocratic features—the kind the Italian painters loved—the soft russet cloud of her long, dark lashes which curled back from her velvety brown eyes, giving her a faintly surprised, small girl expression.

"LOUISE!" mama cried again. Nancy's perfect mouth hung open. Her jaw dropped. "Why, Lou! Don't you think I'm pretty?" she faltered, her vanity pricked.

Lou stitched on in the electric silence. Mama's chair squeaked. Papa rustled his papers, pretending to read. Nancy, flushed and more surprised than indignant, hung on her answer.

"Oh, it isn't that you aren't pretty," she said finally. "You are, of course. Awful pretty. I didn't mean that you weren't, but who cares? Not Gary Fleming and Gil Neal and all that crowd. They've got a million pretty girls—not as pretty as you perhaps. But pretty enough. The woods are full of them. All looking for men with money. What the men want is someone with a fortune—like May Belle Craig. Or a wonderful place in society like that fat Preston girl. Wonderful chance WE have! Take my advice and grab it! The Tully person if you can. He may not have much now, but I'd bank on him getting ahead. You'd never starve with him—he'll make money fast enough!"

"Hm... hm..." Papa cleared his throat nervously. He was sensitive about the subject of money. Poor Peter Hollenbeck, who had never made any money, and owed so much... so terribly much...

"I'd like to see May Belle Craig or Vera Preston get Mat Tully away from me!" Nancy hadn't meant to say that, it just slipped out.

"Girls!" Mama's little wrinkled hands fluttered in protest. "You mustn't say such things. It—it sounds common."

"The truth is always common!" Louise flashed back. "That's why we never hear it around here. We're so refined we never face anything. We just go on pretending, fooling ourselves, and nobody else—"

"LOUISE!" Mrs. Hollenbeck's voice rose to a shrill whistle. "I won't HAVE it! I don't know where you GET that common streak. I'm sure it's not from MY side of the family. When I was a young girl, I'd no more have thought of cursing at my dear mother than I'd have thought of jumping in the h-bay!" Her voice broke, the little claw-like hands groped for her handkerchief, her mild eyes, forget-me-nots in the colorless wreck of her once pretty face, dripped slow tears.

"Kitty, Kitty dear," papa begged, "don't excite yourself. You'll have one of your headaches. Here, dear, take my handkerchief, it's clean. Why, Louise didn't mean to hurt your feelings, did you, Lou?"

Mama sniffed hopefully, waiting for the apology. But Louise, tired and angry and hot after a long, hot day of washing and ironing and mending—"pressing out a few things" it was euphemistically called in the Hollenbeck house—hold—shut her mouth tightly, and made it plain that she had nothing more to say.

In the angry silence, punctuated only by mama's heartbroken sniffs and papa's clucking comfort, Nancy slipped upstairs to bed. It was just as she knew it would be. The family post-mortems were always the same. You couldn't even fall in love decently and quietly. Louise's hawk eye would discover it, and mama would start prying, and in a minute all that would be left of your shining lover would be a few discolored, decomposing shreds. "It isn't FAIR," she whispered, her lips against the pillow—it isn't fair—

"Nancy!" Mama's voice at the door. Nancy lay perfectly rigid, feigning sleep. "Nancy, its mama." Mrs. Hollenbeck tiptoed in, and closed the door behind her, switching on the light.

Nancy sighed and sat up. "I should think you'd let me sleep when you know I'm tired, and it's my turn to get papa's breakfast!" "Lou can get papa's breakfast," mama said absently, ignoring the reproach and shuffling around the bedroom, straightening a shade here, pulling at a dresser cover there, a little blind without her glasses. "This, this Mr. Tully, dear. Is he one of the Fairchild Tullys? Find out if he's one of the Washington family, dear. They're very fine people. Quite well to do. I thought he had an air about him... as if he were used to nice things. When I was a girl I knew an Evangeline Tully. Her mother was one of the Skinners, the sugar people. They kept very fine horses. I remember the livery, plum color with—"

"I'm sure he's no relation," the girl answered patiently. "He's from Kansas City. And Lou's all wrong about his making money. He—he's an Idealist. He HATES business men. He told me he did. He hasn't a nickel. He drives the worst old car you ever saw, and he LIKES it!"

For a woman who has just decorated the church and chosen the wedding breakfast, Mrs. Hollenbeck took the blow bravely. Perhaps it was because she had seen so many imaginary bridegrooms shrivel and die.

"Well, don't see too much of him, dear. People might—might misunderstand. I don't want anyone to have the chance to talk about one of my girls." And after a long, uncomfortable pause, "Other young men would think you were interested in him, and... that is... they would be afraid to pay you attention!"

She expected an answer, a protest against giving up the good looking Mr. Tully so soon, but none came. Nancy lay back against her pillows, her eyes closed, her young mouth sulking and hard.

"Nancy, promise mama you won't do anything foolish!" The dark lashes quivered. "No, I won't do anything foolish. I must have been crazy to ever think... to ever think..."

"Tell mama—to ever think WHAT, dear?"

"Oh, to get romantic about Mat. To think I... the family... oh, please, mama, go to BED!"

"Mama's girl!" The little padded figure in the fraying satin dressing gown leaned closer. Her dry lips brushed Nancy's—and she had never felt so far away... so shut out... so unwanted...

"Nancy, speak to mama!" she cried, afraid, afraid of something, of some new unnamed thing coming between her and her girl, her baby...

"What do you want me to say, for goodness sake?" Nancy was watching her, with cold, appraising curiosity.

"It's just that—that you seemed so quiet, she faltered. Mama was afraid you didn't understand." She wanted to cry out, to gather her daughter to her meagre breast, to croon over her as she did when she was a baby, but she couldn't do that. She couldn't even talk naturally with Nancy watching her like that, so coldly... "I want you to be happy," she struggled on, awkwardly. "I—I haven't anything in the world but you girls. I'm advising you for your own good. You don't know what it means to be poor—to marry a poor man. I—I did, you know. It's been so hard. Nobody knows. Your father and I have looked forward so to you girls marrying well... ooh, you don't understand!" She broke down and wept, uncontrollably then, until Nancy, murmuring endearments, took her into her strong, slender arms, and bullied and coaxed her back to calm.

So Kitty Hollenbeck went back to her room comforted, and it was not until she woke at dawn (was that someone crying in the house, or just the wind rattling the stiff leaves of the magnolia tree?) that she remembered that all the while Nancy was petting her, her eyes remained hard and cold.

"A trick of the light," she decided. "My girls think too much of their mother... good girls... don't have to worry about them... I—I know them too well..." But it is the unusual mother who knows her own daughter in the year of our Lord, 1929.

PROBE DEATH OF SULLIVAN

Industry Man May Be Murder Victim.

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Oct. 16.—State and county police are continuing their investigation of the death of J. Edward Sullivan, 35, World war veteran of industry, on the theory that the man may have been murdered. Sullivan was found Sunday, unconscious in a ditch, from a fractured skull. He died later in the Rochester hospital. Broken pieces of automobile door handles led police to believe he had been hit by an automobile.

State police report that an examination of the body shows no other injury except the blow on the back of the head, which broke the skull. His clothing was not even torn nor were his hands bruised. Police say that, in a majority of cases, when a man is hit by an automobile he suffered other injuries in the fall.

Military funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock from the Presentation church, Midland, and will be in charge of the Midland post, American Legion.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Doctors Discovery Reduces It Quickly and Dizzy Spells Disappear.

Thousands who have dizzy spells, sleeplessness, nervousness, shortness of breath, pains in the head and impaired energy have been told by physicians or insurance examiners that they have high blood pressure. The serious results are well enough known to check it at once. High blood pressure caused by overtaxing the heart often brings on serious conditions.

Norma reduces high blood pressure. Often one bottle will do it. Many have so testified. It is a doctor's prescription and is much used by women at the changing time of life who usually have blood pressure above normal. Ask for Norma at any drug store.—Adv.

REV. MARTIN FILLS PULPIT

Georgetown Pastor Preaches at Emmanuel Church.

With an increasing number of people in attendance, the Rev. V. P. Martin, of Georgetown, O., spoke the second time in his initial visit to the Emmanuel Presbyterian church on Park boulevard as a representative of the Ohio synod in a series of exchange sermons by pastors comprising it, last evening. His theme was "The Way Into The Beautiful Life."

Having on the preceding night's service described "The Beautiful Life," he declared that there were two approaches to it, one manward and the other Godward. "The manward approach is by grace through faith," he asserted, while the Godward way is that of the cross. The cross is God's great invitation to man.

He declared that it was futile to attempt to buy one's way in to this beautiful life. "Neither can it be reached by the accomplishment of good deeds," he said. "The possession of high resolutions will not suffice either in its penetration for this beautiful life is the unthought favor of God."

He further exemplified the way by averting that every new desire which is created in the minds of men is rendered futile unless man expresses it. It is man's part to express initially this desire when he becomes the beneficiary of the grace of God which through faith makes for an entrance into it.

He was again presented to his congregation of hearers by the church's pastor, the Rev. E. A. Walker. He announced that his subject for this evening's service would be, "The Beautiful Service."

Philly Stars Perform In Exhibition Clash

Klein Socks Homer With Bases Loaded; O'Doul Gets Four Bingles; and Both Make Hit With Fans.

Inter-City league arm hinges creaked and complained and leg joints rattled and squeaked as Laughlin and Chester players did a post season comeback last night at Smith Field in an exhibition game with "Chuck" Klein, National league home run king, and "Lefty" O'Doul, leading hitter of the senior circuit, taking part in the fray.

Despite the fact that the crowd was limited for various reasons to little more than 200, the two Philadelphia stars went through with their program like the true big leaguers they are.

O'Doul can whistle base hits to all sections of the lot—every fan knows that and is fully aware, too, of the fact that Klein can punch an apple as hard and as far as any of them in the two leagues.

But—during their brief stay in East Liverpool, quite a number of fans, the kind of guys who sock down their backs at the box office, the rank and file of avid sportsmen, to make up the bulk of the crowd in big league ball parks.

And these fellows will tell you that the two Philly stars are big leaguers, not alone in their baseball ability, but in every way you want to take them—real big leaguers.

Even though the box office was not cracking under the weight of coin of the realm yesterday afternoon, O'Doul and Klein did everything they could to meet the wishes of the small crowd there.

As a result, the bleacherites saw O'Doul scamper about in left field awhile; then at the hot corner and finally curving them down from the hilltop like he did in the old Coast league days.

And Klein came in from middle field to pitch for Laughlin in the last two frames.

The rival twirlers—Klein and O'Doul—pitched to a dead heat. Each allowed a single hit in two frames.

The game went but five frames. But random saw what it had come to see. It saw Klein pole out a terrific wallop into the bushes somewhere in the vicinity of the Ohio river for a home run with the bases loaded. And that wallop by the way was the chief factor in giving Laughlin a 10 to 8 victory over the Chester combine.

And it saw O'Doul pole out four hits in four times up, including two singles, a double and a triple. And was satisfied.

Yesterday the visitors had a round of golf at the country club. They fraternized with members of the Rotary club where Fred Hunter, Philly coach, who is directing their barnstorming tour, told a few stories.

Hunter likes to describe Klein's swiping power. Klein, the younger of the two sluggers, hits at the ball in full stride and isn't as choicy as O'Doul. He'll take a wallop, says Hunter, at anything near the ball park. "In fact," said the coach facetiously, "he saw an airplane breeze over the park one day and took a cut at it." Perhaps, however, Hunter is stretching things a bit.

O'Doul, on the other hand, picks them out. He hits with a snap. He waits a little longer to judge the throw more accurately, but not too long, and then steps out to meet it.

If fans observed Klein closely yesterday, they could readily see where he gets his hitting power. He has a great follow-through with his powerful pair of shoulders. His home run yesterday undoubtedly would have landed, for the sake of comparison, in the upper stands at Forbes Field.

Last night the two baseball players did a turn at the Liberty bowling alley as guests of Forbes "Scotty" Alcock, who teamed with O'Doul in the Coast circuit.

They were two of the gang, auto-graphed anything and everything that came their way and O'Doul displayed one of the greatest southpaw curves ever perpetrated on the local alleys.

Today they are enroute to Portsmouth. O'Doul and Klein are great ball players and fine men both. They are two outstanding reasons why the national game is the national game. Here's hoping "Lefty" gets a million base hits next season and "Chuck" knocks the bingles off all the right field stands in the league.

Buckeyes Hand It To Scrubs

Willaman Saves Three Backfield Stars.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—The Ohio State university varsity gridirers stomped through a freshman eleven yesterday afternoon and made three touchdowns during a 30-minute practice session.

Coach Willaman took no chances of having his backfield stars injured. Holman, McConnell and Horn were kept out of the scrimmage. Holman, former local high school flash, led the freshmen from the quarterback berth in a brilliant manner.

The regulars showed a lack of scoring punch during the first few minutes but they woke up after being pounded by the freshmen and scored three touchdowns. Willaman was visibly heartened and he pointed out that the varsity gained more ground yesterday than it did in any practice session this year.

A squad of 40 fresh all saw service in the half hour scuffle. Meanwhile, the other freshman recruits were being given a workout in their own training field.

Oscar Aeste, freshman end, had his collar bone broken in a scrimmage between two freshmen teams. When taken to University hospital he remarked: "I'm glad it wasn't Fessler."

Chamberlain Tops Sluggers In Community Circuit Here

Socks Ball at .558 Gait; Lee Hall Hangs Up Classy .508 Mark For Season's Work.

SMACKING out the very respectable average of .558 for his season's work at the plate, Roy "Chink" Chamberlain, of Dixonville, topped sluggers of the community baseball league during the season which recently closed, according to statistics announced today.

Lee Hall of the Golden Stars was right on his heels with a mark of .508. The pair of them qualify as the outstanding sluggers of the league, along with Frank Davis of the Stars, a .500 hitter who went to the Inter-City league the latter part of the season.

Lee Hall collected the most singles, 32 in all, and the most bingles, 28. Grace of the Potters laced out the most doubles, hitting eight, of the two-base variety; Roberts of the Potters bagged three triples to lead in this department, while Chamberlain's two home runs gave him the edge in circuit clouts.

Johnny Godwin's 14 stolen bases outclassed anything else in the league in this respect. Simms, who twirled first for the Stars, and then for Grandview, and Rose of Dixonville, led the twirlers for the campaign. The former won nine and lost one. Rose captured 11 and dropped two decisions.

Morgan, McShane Injured

Team, Despite De-feats, is Showing Fight.

ALLS quiet at Patterson Field again. Jack Johnson, backfield man, is back in uniform again after voluntary exile of a few days, differences are all patched up, the kids are showing more fight than ever and are going to keep on fighting even if they lose every game of the season.

What if it is a tough year? There have been faint rumors to the effect that such things have happened at Ohio State, Notre Dame, and Michigan—but them all together, you have—the whole blamed bunch every one of whom have had the same thing during their many years of football.

The kids cried after that Toronto game. They didn't want to lose it any more than anybody else did.

And just because they lost a few games is no reason why something like only 390 student tickets out of a possible 1,300 should be sold. In other words, one-third of the student body turned out for the game.

However, it's a fact and not fiction, that they won't follow a loser.

That may be all well and good but apparently it is not going to affect the spirit of the football squad.

They have been hanging each other around in practices this week in a way that's not at all comfortable.

Every job is wide open, avers Coach Earl Zook, who's working overtime, mentally and physically, to bring about a turn in fortunes.

The fact, however, that the hospital list has been swelled for the Erie East game doesn't help any. Neither Morgan nor McShane may start the Saturday engagement here with the Pennsylvanians.

Morgan is laid up with a sprained wrist. He got that last night. McShane's shoulder is sprained. An X-Ray revealed there was no fracture. But nevertheless, the two of them are pretty well battered up.

In all probability both of them would have started Saturday. Now, Zook is not sure just who will start.

At any event there's a lively scramble on for places on the starting team.

Frosty Peters Back. CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 16.—Frosty Peters was to return to the Illinois squad today after a layoff due to an injury. A heavy scrimmage was on the bill today to prepare for Iowa Saturday.

Chester P.-T. Plan Concerts, Lectures

Podolsky Artists Will Open Lyceum Course
On Monday Night,
November 11.

CHESTER, W. Va., Oct. 16. —
First of a series of lecture and concerts under the auspices of the Chester Parent-Teacher association will be held in the city hall auditorium on Monday night, Nov.
11, A. D. Rabenstein, superintendent of schools, announced today.

Initial attraction will be the Podolsky concert artists, headed by Vital Podolsky, Russian violinist.
With piano, violin and voice a program of wide variety and high artistry will be given by this trio.
Other members of the company are
Miss Ida Vergin, lyric soprano, and Betty Podolsky, pianist and accompanist.

Second number will be given on
Nov. 22, by the Bergmann Players who will present Booth Tarkington's comedy, "The Intimate Strangers." The company is headed by Gene Bergmann and Anita Tulley Bergmann.
The Pierces, versatile entertainers, have been booked for Jan. 27, while the King Male quartet will appear on Feb. 5. Sam Grathwell, lecturer and traveler, will be the entertainer on March 12, the final number of the course. His subject probably will be "China—A Vision or a Nightmare." He was in Shanghai when the Southern Chinese army mobilized during the early summer for the offensive against the Northern troops and talked with leaders of the warring factions.
